

Before and After Photographs

The former landfill from the entrance with the now redundant recycling pilot plant to the right

Another view of the former landfill. The old shack to the right became the new toilet block

The in between redundant recycling pilot plant

The same view transformed to an educational center with the indoor section of the center to the right

After transformation to the outdoor park section of the educational center. The bamboo building still without its tarpaulin roof

The new use of the old pilot plant as indoor section of the center
